[Redundant Metal-Metal Seal] Abstract

The present invention provides a sealing assembly for protecting a downhole connection. The sealing assembly comprises independently energized metal-metal seals and a housing that prevents the energization of individual seals from affecting other seals.